

Corona pandemic and your gum health

Dear Patient:

I include for you the present information in case you have been diagnosed with chronic inflammation of the gums: the gum disease called periodontitis.

In addition, if your medical history shows another chronic disease, you are placed in a very high risk category – a disastrous combination of health hazards endangering all the internal organs.

The chronic diseases promoted and aggravated by untreated gum disease are considerably compromising your IMMUNE SYSTEM and reducing your ability to fight infectious diseases, as clearly demonstrated now during the Corona Pandemic.

In interest of your general health – contact us and have your gum condition treated as prescribed by the American Dental Association modern standard of care and as requested by all other medical associations.

Unfortunately there are no obvious alarm signs for the patient and the health deterioration caused by the periodontitis is not just a vague possibility but a real and sometimes irreparable certainty.

The treatment is patient friendly, non-surgical and generally less expensive than replacing just a single tooth with an implant / crown. At the same time this therapy will save all your teeth, save your gums and most important, it will prevent the bacterial attack on your internal organs.

If you value your health... then the treatment of gum disease is MANDATORY... as failure to protect your general health is NOT AN OPTION or something commercial pushed what you can procrastinate or “think about”.

Hoping you take my medical advice as a friendly, very honest service to your health and will follow it.

Do not hesitate to call me with any questions,
Dr Florian Braich DDS PhD

P.S.

Please connect us with your primary physician of record for a coordinated care of your general health.

It is my duty as your dentist to work together with your physicians and other specialists and help their efforts in optimizing your medical condition.

Treating your gums is exactly the standard of care needed to accomplish this goal.
